Comments: Surely, there must be a better way to protect these heirloom wild horses. Why is it always the first thought to kill them? How about an adoption program? Maybe transfer some of the horse to another sanctuary or reach out to other animal sanctuaries to see if they could accept some of these horses. Spread the horses among a few locations to preserve them and the close breeding.

The horses were in place long before the domestic livestock.

Please give this idea more thought - do not just destroy any of the horses!

Thank you!
