Comments: What will happen will the other 400 something remaining horses..I've very concerned they will end up being sent to slaughter and they don't deserve that..we need to give back to our community our world our animals..how can they flourish together without being separated.. this is exactly what BLM did a few years ago for the horses in mesa..I don't know where we get this notion a small amount of something is enough..how did our ancestors do it..how are they so much smarter than us..how did they handle much more numbers than we do..how cud they handle thousands back in the day and we can't handle 500? Seems as the world gets older we wanna shrink what we have around us and one day when our great great grand kids ask what happened to all our beautiful creatures in this world they will have to be told your ancestors killed them off..save the horses..save our animals save our planet save ourselves
