

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 3/2/2020 8:09:52 PM

First name: Linda

Last name: Greaves

Organization:

Title:

Comments: The number of horses have been stable and even declined over the past decade. This should be the example of where nature is working. The balance has supported predators and kept them from looking for other food sources. This is balance and while people enjoy seeing them cattle and increased grazing by livestock is not what people go to see. Horses are also good for the environment whole cattle damage it. Horses also help keep the fire loads in check. So there are so many negatives to this I can't believe this is being considered.