Comments: If these wild horses are to be truly "free roaming" as stated in the article, then fences must be taken out of the equation. Then the confines of a small area won't be artificially "unable to sustain a specific # of horses." Allowing them to free roam will not put a stress on the forest. It is good for the forest to have the floor groomed by the horses. Less chance of fires.
Thank you for allowing me to express my concerns regarding this plan.
