Comments: Could you explain why that there is never any mention of cattle and sheep grazing in any of your literature?

Cattle and sheep are much harder on the landscape than horses.

Land degradation is a common problem on cattle and sheep areas, why is this never mentioned in any of your literature?

Can you explain to me why you do not explain hows cattle and sheep graze, is it because they destroy grazing quickly. Sheep and cattle do not move very far at all. Horses travel on average twenty miles a day?

The Forest Service wants to decrease the number of horses however how many horses have you not included, such as the number of horses that have died from gunshots?

Sincerely,

Alison James
