Comments: I comment today as a snowmobiler. When my wife and I ride the trails of Vermont we experience the wonder of the forest and outdoors that is almost impossible to see any other way. The network of trails thru VT are second to none and offer a full view of the state top to bottom. These trails offer to many, outdoor recreation that has been in place for many years.

My concern is that a project like this will cutoff, or limit a recreation to many when really one of it's objectives is just the opposite. I trust that the Forest Service realizes this and understands the importance of balancing this project carefully.
