Comments: RE: Draft Assessment pages 88-116

In the Bibliography, page 106, I noted the Ohio Forest publication dated from 2009 and covered the year 2006. A new version, NRS-118 came out in December 2018 and covered the year 2016. Using this more recent source would make a better product.

RE: Draft Assessment pages 88-116

The bibliography over all is eclectic and, I assume, did not include all the information gathered in the preparation of the draft. Many of the citations in the various supplements and comments by working groups were probably omitted with the assumption that they could be located closer to the document they were cited in. When items were geographically distant, I am assuming that a search was made for information closer to the region but that it was not found in time for inclusion.

RE: Draft Assessment pages 88-116

The attempts to present a short synopsis of the public contributions seems to have suffered from wanting to be inclusive but without quantifying the responses, which resulted in what seems to be uneven coverage.

Hazard Risk Reduction overlooks the unfortunate existence of a culture of spring bulldozing the creeks and streams.

Non-renewable Energy There is a problem with members of the public not recognizing that the BLM has a critical role in what happens. This shows up in the supplement but is so critical it should be included in this section as well.
