Comments: I visit the Ochoco National Forest dozens of times a year. I see the negative impacts the feral horses have on the landscape and the native wildlife. I have watched horses chase deer out of feeding grounds. Their territorial character and ability to control watering and grazing areas is detrimental to the native wildlife. Tags could be issued at $15-$40 a piece to help manage and control the feral horse population. Some people would harvest the horses for food, others for dog food, and others simply to contribute to the conservation of the habitat and NATIVE wildlife! We must protect our native resources. Thank you
