Comments: Nez-Perc National Forest plan revision

Hi my name is Cody Christensen an avid snowbiker snowmobiler and i wanted to make a few comments on the Nez-Perc national forest plan revision. The great burn is an amazing place to accses in the heart of winter there is literally no other place like it. I personly have never seen any wildlife when you are able to access those kind of area there is just to much snow for something to live there. In my opion that is one of the greatest things about snowmobiling/snowbiking is when the snow melts so does the tracks it is one of the greatest thing being able to see such beautiful country and preserving it for future generations to enjoy it as i have. If they close down huge areas like this it is only gonna cause more conflict with snowmobilers and skiers/snowshoeing. Confining us all to such a small place as when we have areas like the great burn that is just way to far in the backcountry to access by skis in a day. We really do need to preserve this stuff for future generations to enjoy the complete serenity of accessing the greatburn by snowmobile/snowbikes. In my opion there is already so much wilderness area and area that cannot be accessed by snowmobile or snowbike that we really do not need to shut areas like the great burn down.Thank you for your time.
