Comments: I have recently reviewed the released Nez Perce-Clearwater Forest Plan Revision Draft Environmental Impact Statement and Draft Revised Forest Plan. None of the alternatives presented reflect the management I would like to see implemented for the Hoodoo Roadless Area. Please accept these comments into the formal record.

I am Ken Cyr, a native Montanan. I spent several decades of my life hunting, fishing, backpacking, and cross country skiing in Western Montana and Eastern Idaho. As I perused photos of the Great Burn area memories and emotions were rekindled.

As a boy and young adult numerous hunting, fishing, backpacking, and cross country skiing trips were spent in this area. I can still hear Elk bugling in the Great Burn area on the Montana/Idaho border and the magnificence of 18 feet of snow on the ridgeline above Heart Lake on that same border.

I think the Hoodoo Roadless Area should remain as such. Some things are sacred and as soon as motorized vehicles are allowed that aspect goes away. For about 50 years I have always questioned how an Elk or other critters knew when they had out ran the sound of a snowmobile or other ATVs. We and our posterity need areas where those sounds and tracks do not exist.

For today's generations and future generations to have areas which are pristine, with solitude, and only sounds of the natural environment.
