Comments: I have spent many years enjoying the new Perce/Clearwater National Forest. I've hiked, camped, atved snowmobiled this great area. I've had the pleasure of taking other through the magruder corridor and see the wonder on their faces as they experience traveling through this great area for the first time. Have if said that, almost e erroneous who has experience this area for themselves expressed alarm at losing some of the most valued areas to more " wilderness " designation. Being able to stop just about anywhere and make camp, to, see wilderness on both sides of the road without losing the ability to ride through has been one of their greatest experience ever! So, I would greatly encourage the agency to really forgo adding anymore area to wilderness or even to give it a recommended wilderness destination! These lands are important to those who for what ever reason don't have the time or where with all to hike into wilderness areas yet truly enjoy experiencing the wilderness feel by riding and camping through out the area. We need true shared experience, not just for the elite, but for the everyday person as well! Please, no more wilderness, let's return to the agency's Gould that where used when the forest service first started, and that was to preserve the lands for all Americans, rich and poor alike! Respectfully, mike Jeffords.
