Comments: I strongly support the Camp May Water Pipeline Project. Consider the improvements and changes to Pajarito Mountain Ski Area since Sipapu became involved. Pajarito now has a ski team again. Many local Los Alamos elementary school students are learning to ski every Wednesday. Some nearby school districts have also taken advantage of the ski area and are busing their students to Pajarito to learn to ski.

In addition to skiing in the winter, Pajarito has a selection of summer activities including lift served hiking and mountain biking; and other events such as mountain bike races, and trail fests.

The opportunities for these activities all contribute to the economy and tourism in Los Alamos County.

As noted in many of the comments the Camp May Water Pipeline Project will support fire fighting efforts. Recall the Los Conchas Fire in 2011 and the efforts the firefighters made to protect Pajarito Ski Area.

The Pajarito Ski Area needs the Camp May Water Pipeline Project to continue to contribute to Los Alamos County's efforts to increase tourism and further economic development.
