Comments: I encourage the Forest Service to complete a full environmental impact report before proceeding with such a huge harvest, especially one that differs so radically from previous Forest Service policies to protect wild spaces. This project will have a hugely negative impact on our local environment, ecosystems, and communities. In order for our National Forest to mature naturally for maximum carbon capture, clean water, productive wildlife habitat, and continued recreational use, the Forest Service must be dedicated to truly protecting the interests of our lands and communities, instead of caving to the capitalist interests that are threatening to damage our environment, economy, and global community for years to come.
