Comments: Logging in national forests should require a national populace approval. Trees are an irreplaceable ecosystem of health for our human existence. We have more than enough reusable paper products and there are many choices in building materials that do not require logging.

The American people do not get enough compensation from this destruction. We need to call out the natural resource plundering. Natural resources in federal lands are not for personal enrichment, we need to ensure the preservation of wild spaces for all wild things to thrive and future generations to experience.
