Comments: This is an incredibly distressing turn of policy from what appeared to be the prudent management of these forest lands considering the current climate crisis. I've spent many years visiting this area and have found it to be not just a treasured sanctuary to take part of, but it's very existence has put my mind at some ease to know that such places are still being protected and prioritized as crucial ecosystems in the state and in the world. To hear of the logging potential that seems to be completely at odds with the needs of the people who live here, the natural environment and the stability of our planet is beyond distressing.
