Comments: The natural beauty and value of the land will be deeply degraded if it is commercially logged. There must be an environmental study done first and foremost to evaluate the impact this will have on the communities and recreators who use this precious land. The Pacific Northwest is the number one region for the outdoor tourism industry. In addition the trees help our atmosphere, without them the air will be that much more toxic, we need all the carbon filtering trees we can get! Replanting will take decades upon decades to replace the existing trees. Why, when we are striving to save the Earth from global catastrophe of climate change, would you choose to allow logging on these lands?! It is irresponsible. It must not happen.
