Comments: Hello,

As a 22-year resident to Washington state I've watched logging scar the faces of so many mountains and hillsides that it is heartbreaking. Laws were put in place to protect watersheds that would have kept logging in the proposed regions to a minimum, but with Trump's environmental rollbacks those protections are now gone. This means our forests lose, our salmon streams lose, and we lose as we continue to rape and pillage the earth in its most sensitive areas. I understand that logging is a way of life in our current society, but I implore you to reconsider your boundaries to move the logging AWAY from delicate salmon habitats.
