Comments: I have lived in the Pacific Northwest for 30 years and value this amazing area for its natural beauty. But has so more more to offer than simply beauty alone. It provides a healthy environment for our children, the wildlife, including endangered species such as salmon and whales. The natural beauty and wildlife in turn draw tourists, who help sustain the local economy. Destroying the forest by logging along the North Fork Nooksack River and its tributaries will damage all of the above. Run-off from the denuded hills will muddy the waters, which will negatively impact the salmon, and then of course the whales, bald eagles and others who depend on them for survival. PLEASE reconsider!
