Comments: Hi,

Thanks for your efforts to preserve our desert gems. We often snowbird in Arizona and we came across something that might be great for some of the caves. The Palatki Heritage Site Petroglyphs in the Coconino NF have seasonal camp hosts onsite. The hosts are there first and foremost to protect the fragile wall petroglyphs in the red rock zone. <https://www.fs.usda.gov/recarea/coconino/recarea/?recid=55368>

It would cost the forest service very little to have some full or part-time self-contained RV'ers stay near the entrance and potentially man an after-hours daily gate closure. They could call law enforcement at the earliest signs of shenanigans.

Regards,

David Bassett
