Comments: I believe more studies need to be done before you start. Your research is literally three decades old. A lot has changed in technology, understanding, and impact over those generations. Species that weren't endangered thirty years ago, might be now. Or they may have been missed using 90 s technology and understanding to look for them. Also the fact that you waited until two week before the deadline to drop hundreds upon hundreds of outdated documents for everyone to pour over is ridiculous. It seems like an attempt to get in there before anyone knows what's going on
