Comments: I can not believe this is even up for question. Destroying the wetlands and endangering the land and animals we all live here for is absolutely ridiculous. Why isn't there a better proposition for water management and more watering restrictions put in place on all these cities that are in need of more. I don't understand why there isn't a better proposition in terms of water mitigation and better water restrictions and curbing water use before we immediately start impacting the beautiful places we choose to recreate in. There is an incredible amount of water waste across our cities and I think there needs to be better plan put in place there before we start wrecking everything. Enough is enough. Start at the root of the problem and find a better solution instead of always thinking there will be more handed out. I say no to this proposition.
