Comments: I am opposed to this project. It sounds better than the previous larger clear cuts. But the areas of proposed cutting, thinning, are areas of unstable soils. Logging interests would view leaving harvestable timber as a loss. But that forgets that the trees help remove co2 from the air and release O2, that they help stabilize soils and reduce runoff. The proposed areas of thinning and harvest are areas of known unstable soils that have had previous slides. I believe that the trees that are there are more valuable being left alone, that any of the proposed activities will be more harmful than if nothing is done.
