Comments: When I looked at the FS map, I was struck that areas proposed for logging appear to be huge and contiguous. No detail was obvious and as such the average person would likely be appalled. To avoid knee jerk reaction, I would think the proposal would make clear what those details are. --Such that the proposal does not plan to simply mow the whole mapped zone to the ground. Insufficient information can generate a huge amount of wasted energy and hostility. Appearance matters.

I saw some good management in Phinney Creek area this spring. New technique (to me) and worth advertising. I appreciate that a lot of effort is going into planning and management. The forest service has an old reputation with some (I'm 71) of being an agent for the timber companies. -road builder and clear cuts. -Without proper concern for genuine sustainability. I don't believe this is still true but reputation dies slowly. It is important to be careful to present the more complete view.
