Comments: I spent hours reading peoples public comments today. Most of these people live thousands of miles away and have never been in this forest and are demanding it all be turned into wilderness. I suspect a lot of these people aren't even physically able to access these areas. They're just sitting at home on their computer reading some Facebook action group telling them to file complaints demanding it all be turned into wilderness or all the animals will die. Animals thrive under the existing plans. Why do we have to change anything? Bicycles aren't allowed in wilderness areas and there is some amazing mountain biking in the planned wilderness area. Motorized vehicles are already not allowed on those trails so really this just cuts mountain bikers out.
