Comments: During a time when the US is losing forest at an alarming rate due to climate, change, invasive species, wildfires, and development this action is totally irresponsible. Any short term effects for jobs, income, etc. will immediately be wiped out by the long term cost to the watershed, the native habitat, including plants, birds, wildlife and the health to the human community. Are there any forecast as to the future of what will happen to this area and the communities it supports? If not, there needs to be. The planned roads, if not washed out, will have no where to go after being used for logging. It is important that we have long term plans that sustain are diminishing natural resources. I hope The US Forest Service adopt sustainability as a goal.
