Comments: Every tree cut down is one less natural oxygen producing bio-machine, one less habitat for animals, one more nail in the coffin of mother nature! The lumber industry should practice planting trees first and prevent cutting down old growth forests. Natural preservation and conservation must come before industry and profit! We only have one earth. Only one place that can support life; unless you have found another one, this is it! We cannot survive as a species without nature. Don't wait until the last tree falls, and we are gasping for breath, to take action.
