Comments: As a seventh generation Idahoan hearing stories passed down from the adventures on the South Fork Salmon sparked me to want to explore this wild land myself. Years later after many seasons as a river guide on rivers all over central Idaho it breaks my heart to think of spoiling such an untouched gem. Not only as a raft guide am I connected to Idaho's rivers and salmon, but also as a private boater on the South Fork, a hunter in the headwaters and canyon, and a fisherman in the crystal waters. The irreversible damage to federally protected and endangered fish species and the Nez Perce land sworn to be protected by the US government, should've been enough to stop the idea of this project in it's infancy. But here I am begging for the protection of something not only important to me and my family for generations, but to the generations of crucial fish habitat, and the generations of natives before us all. Please stop the Stibnite Gold Project!
