Comments: As a Navajo environmentalist and avid hiker I am disgusted, but not surprised by the lack of reverence for this land and this waterway. There is not now, and will never be a reason important enough to justify exploiting such a pristine area and harming a crucial water source for millions of humans and animals alike. I am ashamed that this mine is even in consideration. I love this area with all of my heart and would implore all of you decision makers to not think with your wallets for once, but with your heart, soul and spirit. You also need clean air and water to survive. So stop being selfish and acting like destruction will never affect you like this like will affect an untold number of lives.
