Comments: As an Idahoan, naturalist, and biologist, I am extremely opposed to the Stibnite mine project. Thisnis too critical and rare of a resource to undo what little, yet very expensive work done to remediate the rampant destruction caused in the past. This is not sound science and reviews required by projects of this size in the past have been glossed over. Approval will deny us of cultural resources such as an endangered salmon run. This in addition to the wholesale destruction and pollution will open the US government to years of expensive litigation. We all know how the story ends. Take the resources, take the profits, go bankrupt, and stick the populace with all the pollution, extinction, and expense. Deny this permit.
