Comments: This land must be preserved so that the future has a true sense of beauty and responsibility. We must be good stewards of the environment, the all financial gain will be finite from this project. Much of the country and the world at large (including the leading extractive industries) are looking into transitioning efficiently to green infrastructures. Not because they are moral, simply because it is the future and they will always protect the bottom line. Don't let this natural beauty be one of the final casualties.
