Comments: Parts of this plan could reasonably and appropriately be labeled as restoration. Adding an OHV trail on the perimeter is not one of them. Such a trail would invite excursions beyond the marked trail into enological sensitive lands. This soils in the HDs are highly erodible. Even if trail riders did not leave the marked trail, there likely will be significant new erosion events which will degrade the ecological condition. This trail would also allow hunters access to some of the last protection available to elk and deer. I moderately oppose the plan, in general, and strongly oppose the OHV trail. It is ludicrous to call this trail part of a restoration.
