Comments: It saddens me to read how the community has been divided over this proposal. Clearly until some common ground has been identified plan A is the only solution. Take time to discuss and respect each other or run the risk of deep divisions in an otherwise idyllic community.

I no longer live in Portal but consider it one of my best life experiences. It is a community of good friends who care deeply for each other and the unique environment. Do not spoil that with rash decisions that will leave the community scarred.

It is clear to me that both "sides" want what they consider best for the community and public. In the end you will still all have to live together. Be patient and take some more time to hear each other out.

Given what I have read of the proposals I humbly support Plan A.

Sincerely

Sarah
