Comments: The fact of the matter is, e-bike use is unenforceable. I frequently ride my e-mtb on local trails that the land manager has allowed it and almost nobody has any idea I'm even on an e-mtb. This coupled with the fact that there are e-bikes out there now that look completely identical to a traditional bike means that the enforcement will only be more impossible. (see attached image) I'm all in favor of allowing e-bikes on trails in the national forest. I've seen it work well in other places and seen it allow my loved ones who have health issues ride with me.
