Comments: I am older and regularly use an eBike. I could no longer ride a regular bike due to troubles get on and off. I no longer have confidence in own strength without assistance for steeper hills. eBikes are quiet and while having extra power are nothing like a dirt bike in terms of sound or power. For someone like me the bike would afford me an opportunity I otherwise wouldn't have. I assume the eBike would be used on trails already established. I do not think areas needed by wildlife should be invaded any more than they already are. So the distance the bike might cover could become an issue if the solitary of wildlife were disturbed. If younger folk think the eBike would lead to abuse of the back country I would be against its use in wild lands.
