Comments: I don't think E-bikes should be allowed on any trails except those already designated for off road vehicles. There is already enough damage done to public lands by people not following the rules for off road vehicles. I think that opening more trails and allowing people to get deeper in to the forests easier will compound this problem. I have a brother who is disabled and in a wheelchair. We always find opportunities on public land for him to fish and hunt. Part of the beauty in these hard to reach places is the fact they are rarely disturbed and take a little more effort to get to. Allowing the wildlife to feel safer and the land to stay in its natural habitat due to not as much foot traffic. Thanks for taking time to read my comment and allowing the public to have input on this topic.
