Comments: Class 1 ebikes (MTB) should be allowed on all trails. Most have the ability to be ridden without the pedal assist engaged. Most have a governor that limits the speed to under 20 mph. They don't put any more wear and tear on trails than other bikes. As a physician, I have patients who are able to use an ebike for exercise whereas without that bit of pedal assist, they wouldn't be able to enjoy a bike ride through the woods like the rest of us. I think they encourage and enable exercise for older people who would otherwise sit and watch TV. I think most proponents of ebikes have never ridden one, and so view them as some type of motorbike, which couldn't be more wrong. If you the rider don't pedal, the bike won't move. I'm really not sure what all the controversy is about. If a person can't walk without a cane, you don't take the cane away, right?
