Comments: The Tongass National Forest is a pristine area that should remain that way. The use of e-bikes should be prohibited as a danger to hikers, campers and other visitors and as a danger to the environment, plants, insects, animals, etc. as the bikes carve deeper and wider trails, increase traffic and otherwise interfere with the natural environment. They still use grease and oil in their component parts and spills will happen, which further aggravate the situation. I say "NO" to e-bikes in any national forests, BLM land or other Federal holdings.
