Comments: To whom it may concern,

I've read about this proposed mining project for years, and from the outside looking in, it's both difficult to fathom, and understandable, how complicated its become to approve a project. My hat is off to the folks who've toughed out the permit process, and I hope they are permitted to mine, and restore nature while remaining profitable.

Clearly in the past ventures like this were irresponsible and negligent, but one can't help but wonder if the country hasn't gone to the opposite end of the rope.

Somewhere it was written, "A wise man avoids all extremes".

Regards,
