Comments: It is foolish to allow ebikes in forest service lands. Ebikes are disruptive to the wildlife and allowing them creates an unfortunate precedent for other unwanted recreation on forest service lands, like dirt bikes or ATVs. The argument that it is necessary to allow them because of elderly and disabled individuals is an incredibly thin argument. The vast majority of users will not be these types of individuals, but rather perfectly capable people who are using the ebikes as slightly less glorified dirt bikes. I hope the Forest Service strongly considers the negative impact ebikes will have on the land before making their decision
