Comments: I believe that the sooner you cut and remove these danger trees, the better it will be for the public and the wildlife. The longer the trees have to rot, the more of a hazard to everyone they become, and additionally, if the trees are allowed to rot, they lose all value as a resource. You will also be supplying jobs to contractors who need the work. It only makes sense to do work that is beneficial to the public in the form of safety, provide jobs, and provide a resource which can then be used.
