Comments: Do not eliminate protections for large trees on public lands in eastern Oregon. Mature and old growth forests need more protection, not more logging. "Wildlife Screens" was put into place in the 90s because of the well-documented deficit of large trees across the landscape due to logging and mismanagement. Large trees are biological legacies that are crucial for wildlife and ecological integrity- they need protection, not logging!

Withdraw the proposal to take away protections for large trees and the wildlife species that depend on them. The Forest Service needs to cancel their plans to increase large tree logging. Drop this attempt to replace a protective standards with an unenforceable guideline. This is very alarming and I do not support it.
