Comments: Where else in America is there a modern mining company that's willing to clean up the messes left scores of years ago by miners who took little responsibility for caring for the environment at their mines? Not using taxpayer dollars to have the old damage remediated is a remarkable opportunity that should not be denied. The COVID-19 pandemic has shown that most of America's economy is non-essential, and needs fixing with essential jobs here at home. The new mine will provide good-paying essential jobs and supply metals that are important to our economy and America's well-being.
