Comments: I'd like to personally object to this plan. The fish that thrive here will have a difficult time readjusting to any man made environment for them. There is tons of research that proves that fish thrive best in their natural environments. That creating populations in other areas is not sustainable. We need to protect the environments that they do have. Fisheries tend to only sustain for the season because the fish aren't able to naturally do what they do. Please consider what our planet will become if we keep making exceptions.
