Comments: I am opposed to the extension of trails open to e-bikes on National Forest Service land. There are already close to 60,000 miles of Forest Service trails open for e-bike use and the result is not pretty. Wildlife needs are disrupted and the peacefulness that many hikers go to NFS land to enjoy is disturbed. While many riders are respectful of the fragile lands that they are riding through, many are not - cutting across fragile landscapes and tearing up ground cover that will not recover. E-bikes have 60.000 miles...that's ENOUGH!
