Comments: Of course it's possible you folks have been shills for industry all this time. I didn't notice your deep desire to kill all wildlife, particularly wolves that mingle with a cattleman's perogatives, and your lying to the rest of us about your concerns for forest health and management. Also, here in Montana, there's a deeply imbedded belief that logging and ranching are god-given rights under the dominion grant of people's privilege. It didn't include any statement I recall about going forth to destroy the beautiful creation, but may it's implied somewhere. Well, if I can win a lottery I'll use half the money to fund organizations to fight you for every square inch you'd like to destroy. And maybe a biker or two might get knocked off his destructive tool accidentally by something non=foresty.....
