Comments: As a nation we will lose our wilderness with every exception granted to those who deny the Wilderness Act. E-bikes are no exception and must be denied use of the established hiking trails on National Forest lands. I have encountered them on hikes and they are often inconsiderate and dangerous. E-bikes belong on city streets, roads and highways, not hiking trails used by walkers. Please read the Wilderness Act again and follow the law that plainly states no motorized vehicles!! Outside the wilderness areas, E-bikes will be a constant danger to those who choose to hike rather than bike. Don't let this happen on your watch.
