Comments: I anticipate that having ebikes in the forests will be loud and obnoxious, and they go too fast to mix with hikers and regular bikers. I suggest that if there is room enough in a National Forest, it might be good to set aside some trails for the use of ebikes, such that they do not occupy the same space as those who might be adversely affected. I appreciate that ebikes use technology that may not operate from fossil fuels, and I appreciate that people like to make use of them. Because of that, I feel it might be good to accommodate their usage while at the same time ensuring the safety and enjoyment of everyone.
