Wildlands are no place for any motorized vehicle, whether gas or electric. The wild is supposed to be just that: WILD. It's for appreciating Nature in all its glory, not zipping around on an electric bike disturbing the wildlife. Little by little the reason for having wilderness areas is being whittled away in an attempt to turn them into just really big parks with amenities. That is NOT their purpose. The wild areas must be preserved AS IS, or they are no longer wild, but abused as so many other places have become. Nature has the right to exist undisturbed.
