

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 10/22/2020 2:02:50 AM

First name: James

Last name: Keil

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Electric bikes have no place on National Forest Lands. Putting a vehicle on a footpath in a national forest is a recipe for collisions and disaster. As someone who has no interest in biking in the forest, I have even less interest in being clobbered by ones of these bikes, whether mountain or ebike, when I'm hiking the trails of our forests. In addition, bikes have already proven their ability to destroy footpaths and making them dangerous to walk on. If people want to ride bikes I the forest, let them buy some forest acreage of their own.