Comments: To me personally when I think of wilderness, it is a mass untouched place, it is a sanctuary for both humans and animals. Humans are suppose to be smarter than animals. But the human race has just about made it impossible for this planet to survive. When you eat all that is in your refrigerator you have nothing left to eat. You starve because there is no more food.

The bottom line is this. WAKE up! Fudging the line of what can and can't happen in the wilderness is so selfish. You have no choice here. The right thing to do is to protect the wilderness like it is the last place to get food. And the food I speak of is the food for all our souls.
